George M. Brinkerhoff, Graduate Of Gettysburg College, Dies In Springfield.

George M. Brinkerhoff, a native of Adams county, but for the last 69 years a resident of Springfield, Illinois, where he was a prominent citizen, died Sunday. He was 89 years old, and was born near here August 20, 1839.

He was graduated from Gettysburg college in the spring of 1859, and in the fall of that year he went to Springfield to be instructor of mathematics and Latin at Concordia college, which at that time was known as the Illinois state university.

Public Career

He was the oldest Mason in Springfield, both in years and in membership.

Beginning his public career early in life, Mr. Brinkerhoff served two terms as city comptroller at Springfield. He held office at the time when Springfield's first waterworks system was installed and dug up the first shovelful of dirt for the construction of the reservoir at Reservoir park, completion of which project marked a forward step in the city's development.

Later Mr. Brinkerhoff was chief clerk in the Illinois state auditor's office for two terms and he inaugurated the system for state supervision of insurance companies which still obtains.

Joined Iron Firm

He left the auditor's office when the Springfield Iron company was organized and for fifteen years he held the secretaryship of that concern.

Mr. Brinkerhoff also was engaged in the mortgage, loan and real estate business for several years from which he retired about thirty years ago. Since that time he maintained an active interest in horticulture until his last illness a few months ago.

Mr. Brinkerhoff was a Republican and showed an intense interest in national, state and local politics. In this connection he became personally acquainted with many of the most prominent leaders in state and national affairs for fifty years. During this time it was his privilege to become a close friend of Abraham Lincoln and General Ulysses S. Grant. General Grant was drillmaster at Camp Butler and visited frequently with Mr. Brinkerhoff when he called at the state auditor's office. The late William Jennings Bryan, in a day before he was known as a fiery Democratic standard bearer, came to Mr. Brinkerhoff at the auditor's office for his father's warrants. Gen. John A. Logan also was listed among the Springfield residents' warm friends.

Was A Presbyterian

Mr. Brinkerhoff was a member of First Presbyterian church and was a charter member of practically all the Springfield organizations in which he held membership. He helped institute several Masonic lodges in his district.

DR. H. C. ALLEMAN RETAINS OFFICE IN ASSOCIATION

Civic Nursing Body Re-elects Its President At Annual Meeting Tuesday Night.

Dr. Herbert C. Alleman, Confederate avenue, was re-elected president of the Civic Nursing association at the annual meeting at Christ Lutheran church, Tuesday evening.

Other officers and members of the board of directors were elected as follows:

Miss Annie Horner, first vice president; Miss Mary Ramer, second vice president; Mrs. D. P. McPherson, secretary; I. L. Taylor, treasurer, and Mrs. William Arch McClean, Miss Anna Reck, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Mrs. H. T. Weaver, Mrs. Clyde B. Stover, Miss Anna McSherry, E. P. Miller, Dr. C. H. Huber, Arthur R. Jones and Leroy Winebrenner, board of directors.

It was decided to hold the annual canvas for subscriptions to the nursing association during the week beginning September 23, and Miss Anna McSherry was named director of the campaign.

President's Report

The report of Dr. Alleman for the year ending August 31, described as "very gratifying," was presented as follows:

"As president of the Civic Nursing association it is my duty to submit the annual report of the board of directors for the year ending August 31, 1928. The society was organized in 1911, and for seventeen years continuously it has ministered to the needs of the community. During the past year the work of the board has been made light by the generosity of the community in response to our annual appeal last September and the efficiency of our nurse. The association is fortunate in having the services of so able and devoted a nurse as Mrs. J. T. Fogle who is completing her fourth year with us. Her work has been entirely satisfactory to the Board and the patients. No figures can measure the ministry of a faithful nurse, but they are our only means of comparison.

"During the year, as reported by the consulting committee, Mrs. Fogle made 1,055 visits in 141 families and received from patients $321.25 and $30 from the Metropolitan Life Insurance association. That the number is not larger is due to the good health with which our community has been blessed. By far the largest number of the nurse's visits have been to those suffering from the (Continued on Second Page.)

South Mountain Fair Facts

"Gunpowder," well-trained kicking mule, is valued by its owner at $15,000, and is covered with $10,000 worth of insurance. Judging from the laugh-producing antics of "Gunpowder" and his three dusky handlers, he is worth every penny of his value.

Mrs. Luther I. Sachs, Hanover street, won the sweepstake and two first prizes for her display of dahlias in the gorgeous flower exhibit. Besides the sweepstake award, Mrs. Sachs' dahlias won firsts for the best collection of a dozen of the blooms and for the three best hybrid decoratives.

The large crowd was capably handled by state police, who patrolled the grounds and state motor patrolmen, who directed traffic to and from the park. No arrests were made on the opening day.

The women of the Arendtsville-Biglerville community know how to prepare good food. As tasty a meal as anyone would care to sit down to was offered to the fair patrons at reasonable prices. Choice of roast beef or roast pork, with vegetables and coffee, was offered for sixty cents.

The Gettysburg Buick company closed the first deal for one of its Silver Anniversary Buicks among the automobile dealers. William Sheeds, of Gettysburg, made the purchase Wednesday evening, and asked to be allowed to drive the machine away from the grounds at once.

The school exhibit is one of the most attractive on the grounds. The number of articles displayed would run into the thousands.

A span of twenty-five years in the automotive industry is represented in the display of Reo automobiles. Included in the large exhibit of these automobiles, are shown one of the 1904 models beside one of the 1929 Flying Clouds.

The Gettysburg Boys' band never failed to attract a large crowd at its concerts in the afternoon and evening. They play again this afternoon and tonight.

Did you know that the ferris wheel is 55 feet high?

The grounds were filled with radio music from exhibits of M. A. Shue, Biglerville; Nace's Music Store, Gettysburg; Baker's Battery Service, Gettysburg, and others.

Twelve of Fairfield's Old Time fiddlers will play familiar barn-dance tunes tomorrow. The dozen fiddlers are Lloyd Sites, Preston Baumgardner, Dennis Dolly, Paris Pentz, William Singley, Jack Sease, John Sease, Guy Seifert, "Howdy" Sanders, William Shindeldecker, Carl Singley and David McClellan.

It took an expert judge seven hours to judge the large poultry exhibit. This department is well worth the price of admission alone. D. C. Jacobs, of Arendtsville, is at the head.

One of the best bargains on the grounds is the five cent glass of lemonade served at the cafeteria.

FAIR OPENING HUGE SUCCESS SAY OFFICIALS

More Than 1,500 Attend Evening Session Tuesday; Horseshoe Contest Today.

The first day of the South Mountain Fair was an unqualified success in every particular, directors of the association said today. The crowd, which reached its peak Tuesday evening, was estimated in excess of 1,500 persons, and many commendatory remarks concerning the exhibits and entertainment were heard.

The concessioners were well-pleased with the business they did on the opening day, and receipts at the cafeteria, operated in connection with the fair, were well ahead of the first day of the 1927 exposition. Exhibitors of commercial products were called upon to show their wares, and in a number of instances sales were consummated on the grounds for articles on display.

"Gunpowder" Is Amusing

"Gunpowder," the kicking mule, gave two uproariously funny exhibitions on Tuesday. The mule is assisted in his act by three colored handlers, and a rapid-fire comedy skit is presented along with the antics of "Gunpowder" and his trainers.

The exhibits of the products of field, orchard and garden, livestock, poultry, dogs and school exhibits far surpass those of any previous fair in quantity and quality, persons familiar with the fair said. Judging of the flower and poultry exhibits were completed late Tuesday afternoon. Judges of other departments were at work today.

The "Gettysburg Boys' band," which gave creditable concerts Tuesday afternoon and evening, was again scheduled to play this afternoon and evening. Tomorrow, the closing day of the fair, the Hanover Knights of Pythias band will play, and in addition, the Old Time Fiddlers, of Fairfield, will give familiar barn dance numbers.

Horseshoe Contest

A feature of today's fair was the horseshoe pitching contest which got under way this afternoon. In this competition, the champion pitcher of Adams county was to be decided.

Today's fair was favored with a hot, bright sun, and the crowd began arriving early.

Here and There

News and Comment by THE EDITOR

Sportsmen in other counties are finding a way of their own, it would seem, in preventing or handicapping the doe killers, as the following news dispatch from Perry county would indicate:

Blain, Sept. 12.—Following the action taken by Centre county landowners and sportsmen, local landowners are declaring their intention of posting their lands against the hunting of doe in this section. By the time that hunting season arrives it would not be surprising if a major portion of the best hunting land were posted they said.

The sportsmen declare that a great influx of hunters will virtually clean the deer from Perry county and they are taking these means of keeping game in the woods. Some of them have taken out the special doe license but say they have done it merely to keep other hunters from getting them. They will not hunt doe. Perry county's allotment of doe license is 1400.

Will the landowners of Adams county follow suit by posting their lands against doe killing?

It is interesting to note that the church membership in the United States is in excess of sixty million persons, according to figures furnished by the United States bureau of census.

The Roman Catholic church leads the list with 18,604,850, which is more than twice as many as the Baptist and Methodist denominations of the protestant faith combined, the two leaders of the protestants.

The Baptists, including northern, southern et al. have 8,417,354 and the Methodists, including Episcopal, southern, protestant et al. have 8,069,870. The Lutherans, whether united or not, include, all told, 4,044,657, with the Presbyterians, and all their ramifications, a far away sixth with a total having 2,625,284 and holding fifth position among the protestants. Of course, the Jewish—orthodox or otherwise—hold third place among protestant denominations, with a total of 4,087,357, if you class them with the protestants.

Seventh in order comes the Episcopal, high or low, with a total membership of 1,859,966, and next in order, they follow:

Disciples of Christ 1,377,595
Congregational 851,696
Reformed Church 613,539
Mormon 552,267
Evangelical 546,947
Churches of Christ 395,208
Eastern Orthodox 317,957
Christian Science 292,098
German Baptist Brethren (Dunkers) 156,248

DELAY BIEVER HEARING UNTIL MARCH OF 1929

Defense Counsel Gets Postponement When District Attorney Is Out Of City.

Because District Attorney John P. Butt was out of town when the case was called for a preliminary hearing before Justice J. L. Hill at 10 o'clock this morning, Attorney J. Donald Biever, of Hagerstown, charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, secured six months' postponement of the hearing.

The charges against the Hagerstown man were the outgrowth of an automobile accident here early in the morning of August 18 in which William A. Corbett, news editor of The Gettysburg Times, was fatally injured, and four other persons were hurt.

At the prosecutor's office it was stated that Mr. Butt had gone to Washington for the day and would no return until evening.

Witnesses for the commonwealth, Biever's attorney from Hagerstown and the prosecutor in the case, Patrolman C. W. Achenbach, of the local highway motor patrol station, were present at Justice Hill's office this morning, but District Attorney Butt was missing. Inquiries at his office revealed that he was out of town for the day.

Renews $2,000 Bail

Biever renewed bail in the sum of $2,000 to appear at the postponed hearing next March. In granting the postponement at the request of Attorney Swope, Justice Hill said Biever, a traveling salesman, was about ready to leave for an extended trip from which he would not return until next spring. He had come back to Gettysburg from Springfield, Massachusetts, for today's hearing, it was stated.

BISHOP URGES CHURCH UNITY

Venerable United Brethren Prelate Urges Ministers To Forget Church Differences.

An appeal to forget inter-denominational differences and seek for greater unity and cooperation in the work of evangelism, was voiced by Bishop Bell, of Harrisburg, senior bishop of the United Brethren church, at the first meeting for the fall and winter season of the York County Ministerium held in the Second United Brethren church, York, Monday afternoon. The United Brethren group acted in the capacity of hosts.

In his address Bishop Bell stated that the work of the apostles was not to be compared with the great challenge of converting America today. "We are on the verge," he continued "of a great religious revival. Philosophy and sciences lead up to a certain point but theology takes us from that point on into the realms of Christian faith. His subject was "Social Responsibility."

Bishop Bell went on to say that "The Christian religion working in society today must seek to obliterate at either end of society its two slums—one the slum of wicked wealth and the other of postulate poverty."

The venerable prelate commended the ministerium on the splendid unity of all the denominations. He compared the spirit manifested by this cooperation as almost unique in his experience. In view of the city-wide campaign of evangelism to be launched in Hanover within a reasonably short time, he felt certain of a great victory because of the differences lost in the great search for souls.

The results of that election showed that they voted just the opposite from the way they were instructed.

The sum and substance is that men will think and pray and even fight one way—but vote just the opposite.

Collegiate Pants Are Now Obsolete

London, Sept. 12.—Oxford bags, otherwise known as collegiate trousers, are obsolete, according to the highest authority on trousers, namely, A. Rutherford-Almond, president of the National Federation of Merchant Tailors, which convened at Newcastle today.

According to Mr. Rutherford, the trousers are "a thing of the past for the well-dressed man—a fact for which every one with any pretense of good taste should be grateful."

Oxford and Cambridge, which Mr. Rutherford says still are responsible for men's fashions, have also decided against bright colors. Conservative cuts also characterize the coming styles.

Church Official Indicted By Jury

Atlanta, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday on a charge of embezzling $69,000 of the Mission Board funds.

HANOVER WINS LEAGUE TITLE

Raiders Win Four Games Out Of Five From Chambersburg Maroons.

The Hanover Raiders won the 1928 pennant in the Blue Ridge League by taking Tuesday's game from Chambersburg, 5 to 1. This was the fifth game of the play-off series and Hanover won the last four, Chambersburg coping only the first game.

Hanover thus won its first pennant in the league, although being a member of the league since it was organized in 1915.

Hamlin Real Master

Hanover outplayed Keliher's crowd in all departments and deserve to be named champions. Hamlin, the big right-hander of the Raiders, held the Maroons to four hits, did not issue a pass and was the master of the home crew all the way through. He got great support, especially from Schulz and Turner.

Blake, who won the only game Chambersburg was able to capture in the series, tried hard to pull the Maroons up out of their slump, but the new champions hit him timely.

Chambersburg's only score was a home run over the left-field fence in the second by Harris, who was the first batter in that round. This was Harris' third homer of the series, he having won the first battle with a home run in the tenth inning, and got another in the third game of the series.

Gatherum Smacks Homer

Keliher's single in the second, Christian's single in the eighth and Graeff's single in the ninth was the total of safe drives the Maroons could muster today. Hamlin struck out five, three coming in a row in the eighth after Christian's single.

HOOVER BALKS AT PROMISES

Refuses To Pledge Himself Now To An Equal Rights Amendment For Women.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Herbert Hoover today frankly told a delegation from the women's party that he would not pledge himself to an equal rights amendment to the constitution until he had completed an exhaustive study of the effect on such a change in the fundamental law.

The Republican presidential candidate said he was now having an investigation made and would carefully consider the results. He added that he wanted to be honest with the delegation and that he did not know of anything more serious for a candidate for office or a public official to pledge himself to work for a change in the constitution.

He said that any plea for equal opportunity had a strong appeal for him but that he had long ago decided not to make final conclusions on paramount public questions without a very careful study.

Says Flying Will Not Cure Deafness

Washington, Sept. 12.—Airplane flights, with or without stunts and no matter at what height are not a cure for deafness.

No less an authority than Lieutenant Colonel Levy M. Hathaway, flight surgeon of the Army Air Corps, has taken up cudgels in an endeavor to correct what he says has been proved an erroneous impression. Instead of being a cure for deafness, he said, deafness is caused and aggravated by flying.

Colonel Hathaway would like to see an end to the increasing flights being made as an expected aid to faulty hearing. The actual effect on fliers proves the contrary. Deafness is common among them and is generally considered occupational, he said. The deafness tends to progress as long as they keep flying, he said.

Niece Of Bergdoll Killed By Brother In Pistol Accident

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—As she stood watching her brother and a companion shooting at a target with a .22-calibre revolver on their farm on West Chester pike, near Broomall, yesterday afternoon, Emma Braun, 17 years old, was shot and wounded fatally when the pistol discharged accidentally while it was being passed by the brother, Charles Braun, Jr., to his companion, Charles Lobb, of Oakmont.

The young woman was rushed to the Delaware county hospital, where she died shortly after having been admitted. The bullet had struck her in the abdomen, police reported. Braun and Lobb were held for a hearing.

Charles Braun, the young woman's father, is a brother of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious draft-dodger. He changed his name during the World War, after both Grover and his brother Erwin had been declared army deserters.

Free-for-all Is Staged By Texas Anti-Smith Bolters

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 13. (AP)—Amid the wildest scenes that ever marked a Democratic meeting in Texas, delegates refusing to endorse the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, bolted the State Democratic convention here Tuesday and organized a convention of their own.

Many of the state's most prominent political leaders swung their fists in a free-for-all fight that ensued when former Governor Oscar Colquitt, avowed anti-Smithite, sprang to his feet a few minutes after the convention opened and shouted:

"Let all loyal Democrats retire." Eyes were blackened and noses bled as the insurgents, trooping from the hall amid jeers and shouts of "get out Republicans," attempted to snatch standards from delegations of loyalists. Officers broke up a half dozen melees before order finally was restored and about 300 insurgents repaired to their meeting place on the front steps of the Fair Park auditorium.

The bolt was precipitated when a motion was introduced demanding that only those delegations loyal to Governor Smith be seated. The motion was an anti-climax to the action of the state executive committee Monday, when anti-Smith delegations from five counties were notified that they would not be seated in the convention.

Pair Drowns In Speed Boat; One Held For Police

Detroit, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Thomas Skinner, of LaSalle, Ont., believed to be the taxicab driver sought by Detroit police in connection with the drowning of John O'Reilly Kelly, of Reading, Pa., and Miss Dela de LaFramier, of Windsor, in a speed boat accident on the Detroit River early Sunday, is in the custody of Sandwich, Ont., authorities. He is to be turned over to Detroit police for questioning.

Police said Skinner was an occupant of the speed boat driven by Andrew Bombash, 28, of Detroit, at the time of the accident. Kelly and the young woman were thrown out and drowned when the boat struck a bridge pier. Bombash is being held on a charge of negligent homicide.

The suit was filed on behalf of station WORW, of Chicago, operated by Quinton R. White, who said other stations were expected to join in the action.

STATE LEADS U. S. IN CORP ACRE - YIELDS

Tops All Other States In Production Rate Of Corn, Wheat, Oats, And Potatoes.

Farmers in Pennsylvania obtained acre-yields of corn, wheat, oats and potatoes far above the average for the United States in 1927 and even exceeded the rate in states which led in total production of these crops, according to studies made by the Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

In Adams county, the acre-yield by bushels of important crops was high. The averages follow: Corn, 41.8; winter wheat, 12.2; oats, 29.8, and potatoes, 147.

The acre-yield of corn in the state last year was 39.5 bushels, 11.3 bushels above the nation's average, three bushels more than in Iowa, the leading corn producer, and also the highest acre-yield of any important raising state. Lancaster county farmers who, in 1927, produced one-tenth of the entire Pennsylvania crop, obtained 20 bushels more corn per acre than did Iowa farmers. Every county in the commonwealth, with the exception of six, had acre yields of corn exceeding the average for the country.

The 1927 acre-yield of winter wheat was 18.5 bushels, 1.5 bushels below the 1926 yield, yet 3.9 bushels above the average for the entire country, and 7.3 bushels more than in Kansas, the leader in winter wheat production. Lancaster county farmers as with corn, produced one-tenth of the entire Pennsylvania crop and obtained an acre-yield more than twice that of Kansas and 11 bushels above the United States average.

The acre-yield of oats in 1927 was 36 bushels, 4 bushels above the 1926 yield, 7.7 bushels above the average for the country, and in Iowa, the leader in oats production. Berks county produced the 3 bushels more than the average most oats and did it at the rate of 38.9 bushels per acre which is 10.6 bushels above the United States average and 5.9 bushels above Iowa's rate. Not a single Pennsylvania county produced oats at a rate less than the average for the United States.

Potatoes were produced last year in the commonwealth at the rate of 120 bushels per acre, 5 bushels more per acre than Minnesota, the leading state. Lehigh produced the most potatoes, almost one-twelfth of the state's total crop, with an average acre yield of 131 bushels, 16 bushels above the country's average and 20 bushels more than Minnesota's rate.

Dr. W. L. Crawford, of Dillsburg, was notified but, when he learned that the aged woman was dead, he requested that the coroner be notified. Dr. L. U. Zech responded to the call and pronounced death due to a stroke of apoplexy.

infirmities of age and from accidents. To these our nurse has greatly endeared herself by her ministrations. This year Mrs. Fogle collected one-third of her salary. During the seventeen years of our work as an association our nurses have made 20,887 visits in 3,227 families, doing a vast amount of good at little cost.

"The finances of the association are in a most satisfactory condition. The treasurer's report shows a balance of $632.33. Beginning with a balance of $568.59; the total receipts were $1,652.49; the total disbursements were $1,020.27.

"It is pertinent to remind our selves that the sources of our income are four: the annual canvass, fees for nursing, church collections and contributions from orders, societies and industry. We gratefully acknowledge our dependence on these sources and ask for a continuance of the same. We call the attention of the community to the fact that while price for medical attention and nursing have parcellously doubled since the organization of our association the price for our nurse's visits have never been raised. We do not wish to deprive any needy person of those services. However, if our patrons would remember that we are dependent upon popular support and count the printed rate at a minimum and not a fixed charge the income from this source could be increased.

"The main source of our income is the general canvass and for this for some years we have had the invaluable supervision of the chairman of our finance committee, Miss Mary Ramer. Miss Ramer has rendered a service without compensation which deserves our annual recognition. The board recommends that in the future this service be compensated by a fair percentage on collections.

"With gratitude to a kind Providence for the good health with which our community has been blessed and the work which our nurse has been permitted to do and with the conviction that the work should go on as in the past, seventeen years, your board submits this annual report."

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

GLORIOUS BETSY, starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

An all-night card game is drawing to a close in the old Sweet Springs Inn. The players are beginning to take stock of their winnings, when Preston tosses into the air a small statuette of Betsy Patterson. He offers to stake it against a hundred pounds, boasting that Betsy gave it him herself. A stranger, passing the open window, overhears the remark, and challenges the speaker. A fight ensues in which Preston is wounded and his adversary goes off with the statuette, leaving a purse of gold behind on the table.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"Ay, a French tutor who tosses old about as though it were words," another added, impressed. "Gentlemen," he turned to his companions with a puzzled look on his face, "we have a mystery here." "A mystery indeed," another agreed. "Who the devil is this fellow?" "Here, Sam! Sam!" Preston looked about him, still rubbing his twisted wrist. "Where the devil's that blackape? Sam!" "Here, suh! Yas, suh!" Sam came forward from his hiding place behind the door of the bar, grinning broadly. "Bring me a whiskey, quick!"

CHAPTER II

Leaving the scene of his activities behind him, the man in black stalked hastily down the slope and towards the woods as though he were bent on some urgent errand. At last he entered the heavily shaded part of the path. Overhead and a heavier underbrush clustered. The ripple of a spring could be faintly heard, and a great deal of splashing almost drowning out the ripple. With much acumen the dog dashed on ahead and barked loudly. "Spot! Spot!" The clear voice of a woman sounded through the underbrush as the dog dashed off, worming his way beneath the thick growth on his belly. A tremendous sound of splashing. Then another call.

"Spot! Drop that! Drop it this instant, sir." But the dog stood pawing the ground, barking, leaping up and down and generally worrying a shoe. There, splashing water about like some woodland goddess, stood a girl of eighteen. Her knee-length pantaloons were tucked up about her slender legs, and her dress, shoes, hat and a remaining stocking lay in a soft heap on the bank. Her rounded, white shoulders gleamed like alabaster in the sun that sifted through the leafy shade, and touched to molten copper the glorious red of her soft hair that was drawn high off her neck and topped with a little mass of curls. The golden red masses were arranged closely about the ears, with escaping curls caressing the soft pink of the cheeks and the white forehead. Now she gesticulated at the dog, but still with no effect, for he had already dropped the shoe, seized a stocking, and was back into the underbrush.

The animal came out on the other side of the shrubbery, disdain the path that led around it. He pursued his course but only for a few short bounds. There he met the man in black, and with a leap he was jumping up and

FREAK STYLES
IN HAIR GAINWoman Who Want To Be
"Recreated" Have Strained
The Beauty Business.

PARIS (AP)—Women who want to be "recreated" in Paris have strained the beauty business almost to the breaking point, says Emile, wielder of the curling iron at a famous hairdressing establishment. Emile's employer is limiting the number of customers he will accept each day for "recreative" treatment.

According to Emile, "be yourself" is a motto without appeal to his customers.

"They all want to be made different," he said with a sigh, "and the pretty ones are the worst of all. We make them different, but sometimes it's a change for the worse, at least to my way of thinking. There's such a thing as looking too original."

Eccentric Styles
Eccentric hairdressing is on the increase, Emile's colleagues of the comb and curling iron agree. The fact that women are trying to disguise the evidence that their hair is being allowed to grow, together with the desire to "be different," is responsible for bizarre hair styles, they say.

One of the remarkable hair styles suggested by one shop to woman who want to be different is the Hottentot. It consists of a bush of hair held in place by round combs which pull the hair back off the forehead. The ends of the growing hair are frizzed to the extreme.

Another new hair style is based on a center part in back. The back hair is combed forward over the ears and covers the short front locks. This style is recommended by hairdressers to women who are letting their back hair grow.

Governor Prefers
Horse To Machine

DENVER (AP)—Gov. William H. Adams of Colorado prefers the creak of a saddle to the roar of a motor car.

He never has owned an automobile and says he never will while there is grazing room for horses.

Governor Adams is reluctant even to ride in an automobile and he invariably takes a train when he goes home to Alamosa.

When the Colorado national guard offered the governor the use of an airplane for a trip home he declined with thanks. "I don't like," he explained, "to get more than 14 or 15 hands off the ground."

Kentucky plans to span the Kentucky river with the highest highway bridge in America.

Sidelights
of New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty-four years ago, when May Sutton was winning the national women's tennis championship for the first time, she was also changing some notions about what the well-dressed feminine tennis player should wear.

She discarded the wide feathered hat and the sweeping dress, often plain black, worn by other players of her sex and donned attire of lighter hue, appeared hatless, and abbreviated her skirts so that they would not trip her in the course of a retreat to the baseline.

The May Sutton of 1904 is now Mrs. Bundy, mother of four youngsters, but she is still a ranking tennis player and her apparel is still distinctive. At the recent women's championships at Forest Hills she played on consecutive days in a white satin dress and in green, yellow and gray silk attire with cloche hat to match, whereas all her competitors adhered to the conventional white linen, twill or gabardine. And she departed further from custom by wearing jewelry—a loose mother-of-pearl choker.

POLITICAL NOTE

Campaign cigars are missing this year from the New York headquarters of the presidential campaign. Visitors to national party offices are offered cigarettes instead, in any of half a dozen popular brands.

Women party executives, displeased by the incense of political stogies, maneuvered the compromise on cigarettes. Most of the feminine politicians have packages of cigarettes on their desks for callers, and one woman leader who does not smoke carries a handsome gold case filled with fags for the convenience of visitors.

AUTOMATIC FIRE

There are too many stories already about cigaret lighters that won't work, but this one is true. At a stage premiere recently the hero had to light a cigaret so that he might burn a hole in the drawing room drapes. Until he did so, the play couldn't proceed. He labored in vain to get the flame from his lighter, and finally, halting the action for a moment, crossed the stage to obtain and strike a match. A moment later a comrade came onto the stage, and he, too, drew out a lighter and applied it to his cigaret. The play would have gone on as briskly if his lighter hadn't functioned, but it ignited at the first twist. Nobody was more nonplussed than he when the audience broke into louder applause than it vouchsafed to any subsequent development of the play.

Cigaret lighters, incidentally, are becoming the bane of theater managers. Once they could keep the house dark at brief intermissions between scenes to produce or retain dramatic effects and to keep the audience in the spirit of the play. But lately, whenever the lights are down for a few seconds, cigaret lighters begin to lift their tiny flames throughout the house, throwing grotesque shadows against the ceilings as the spectators peer at their programs to see what comes next.

The practice violates the spirit if not the letter of the fire ordinances, and it irritates stage managers who have a motive in keeping the audience in pitch darkness; but it seems to be another of those things that nothing can be done about.

"And, may I ask where you were,—earlier?"

the branches of the trees interlocked, and through their lacy foliage came only faint glints of dancing sunbeams. The soft wood moss grew lush and green on rocks and boulders, and even attempted to spring up underfoot and provide a velvet carpet. Squirtle's ramblingly, taking to trees at the approach of a human being, and at above on low branches, chattering and flicking their bushy tails about in a thoroughly injured manner. But the man in black did not pause.

After some fifteen minutes had elapsed, he approached a tree—certainly a tree that appeared exactly like its comrades, but to the man it seemed to carry some special significance, for he stopped and looked about him. He paced back and forth for a few moments, and then consulted a heavily enameled watch. Then he went around the tree and thrust his fingers into a knothole. They emerged with a crumpled paper, unevenly folded. He opened the note, slowly.

"A lady," he read, "may be kept waiting only by her husband or her lover, and I have neither. Your manners are sadly in need of improvement." He smiled. Then he began to laugh. And then he finally thrust the massive back into his pocket.

He glanced around as though debating his course of action. Before him lay the continuation of the path; behind him, the hotel. But even as he hesitated, he noticed a slight noise in the underbrush, and in another moment a big retriever dog came leaping through the bushes, trailing a limp object from his mouth.

"Here, Spot! Spot!" he called. The dog came bounding over at the tutor's call, jumping up and down, and licking the man's hands affectionately, and dropping his light burden. The man stooped, and picked it up. A woman's stocking.

"Spot! Go find your mistress," the man commanded, giving the animal a final pat. The dog turned in the direction that led into the woods, and with a backward glance at the man, started on his way. The tutor thrust the stocking into his pocket and followed on the trail of his guide. A short wax, and a tan and dog came to a sort of clearing, where the trees were less dense,

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany.—Oysters are now held to be in season.

During the past week there has been a large amount of grain brought to our warehouses. The dealers are paying 80 cents per bushel.

George E. Stock, Esq., has the cellar dug for a new house which he will erect on Washington street, opposite the Eagle Hotel. When completed the house will be occupied by Dr. George A. Stock.

The Parochial school of this place opened Monday with a larger attendance than usual.

An excellent Model.—In the show window of L. M. Buehler's drug store there is on exhibition an excellent model of the American yacht "Reliance." The model is the handy-work of Harry F. Buehler, of this place, and certainly speaks well for that gentleman's ability. The yacht is made on a scale of seven-tenths to a foot.
Mr. Buehler presented the boat to Master Alex. Buehler, who should be very proud of this well made model.

Pretty Home Wedding.—Today
at noon Miss Annie Schriver will be united in marriage to Mr. John Tysert, of Washington, D. C. The ceremony will take place at the bride's home on Chambersburg street and will be performed by her pastor, Rev. V. T. Rue, assisted by her cousin, Dr. Luther Kuhlman, of the Theological Seminary.

There will be no attendants.
The couple will enter the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march to be rendered by Miss Maggie Wills.

The bride will be attired in white,
carrying a bouquet of carnations.
The house will be decorated in green and white.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W.
Schriver and is an intelligent and accomplished young lady. She has taught school for a number of terms in different sections of the county and as a teacher has been very successful. The groom is a business man of Washington, D. C., and is possessed of a congenial dis-

Disastrous Fire.—The large bank barn of Maj. Robert Bell's farm, Straban township, was burned to the ground Saturday night.

The fire started about 9:30 o'clock and was discovered by Major Bell's son, Albert, who at that time was bringing the horses in from pasture. The fire started in the hay mow and made such rapid progress that when Mr. Bell reached the building it was impossible for him to save any of the contents.

A summary of the crops consumed is as follows: 500 bush of wheat, 20 bushels of rye, 100 bushels of oats, 25 tons of hay and 10 tons of straw.

The total loss is estimated at about $2500, with an insurance of $500 in the Adams County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of this place.

LINES TO A CERTAIN LADY

(Suggested During Thunderstorm)
Oh, lady, with the frightened look,
Go back, I pray you, to your book!
Turn not on me those timid eyes,
I do not regulate the skies.
That is the voice of thunder
speaking.
For heaven's sake, cut out that shrieking!

Yes, down is every window sash,
I know there goes another flash,
And more will come ere this is through,
But there is nothing I can do,
I will admit that it is frightening,
But, darling, I don't run the lightning.

I beg of you, my dear, sit still!
All storms pass by, and this one will.
Suppose it strikes the house?
Please don't!
For once let us suppose it won't;
And, anyhow, I'd be a wonder If I could stop the noise of thunder.

Yes, yes, my dear. 'Twill soon be gone.
The storm is swiftly moving on.
I'm sorry that it frights you so.
But rains must fall and winds must blow.
That last crash sounds like barrels
bumping.
Great Scott! I wish you'd stop that jumping!

IRVING COLLEGE
NAMES PRESIDENT

Mechanicsburg, Sept. 12.—The Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Ferguson, who retired last fall as pastor of Silver Spring Presbyterian church, was elected acting president of Irving college Monday night at a meeting of the board of directors
at the college.

Dr. Ferguson, who was born in Dry Run, Franklin county, received his education at Westminster college, and his doctor's degree at Western seminary. In 1910 and 1911, Dr. Ferguson was a member of the State Legislature in Harrisburg. He was pastor of the Silver Spring church for forty-nine years.

He has been a member of the board of trustees at Irving college for a number of years and was closely associated with the former president, the late Dr. E. E.
Campbell. He will assume his duties at the college immediately.

Dr. Ferguson's brother, Dr. R.
G. Ferguson, was president of Westminster college for twenty-three years.

call good and evil, we shall find it

Little Jack Rabbit

One misty morning as Little Jack Rabbit hopped across a green meadow the tip of a lovely rainbow seemed almost to touch the ground. As the bunny boy had often heard that a pot of gold hung at the end of the rainbow, he hastened to find his fortune. And wasn't it lucky? Right at the tip of the rainbow, half hidden in a bunch of daisies, lay a big pot of gold.

"Ah!" cried the little rabbit, "I have found my fortune." But just as he was about to carry the pot of gold a voice shouted:

"Hold on, little bunny!
Don't take all that money!"

"Who is speaking?" asked the startled little rabbit, looking here and there and everywhere. But not for an instant did he see the tip of that pot of gold, let me tell you.
He was too wise a little bunny to lose a fortune two minutes after he had found it.

"I'm the fairy of the rainbow," replied the voice and, all of a sudden, the prettiest little person you ever saw slid down to the ground.
Her lovely gauzy wings, pink as a cloud at sunset or a new-blown rose, waving gently in the breeze.
"Oh, dearest me!" sighed the anxious little rabbit, "Now I suppose I'll have to give up my fortune," and the tears started to his eyes as he looked at the little fairy.

"If I let you keep the pot of gold will you do me a favor?" she asked, with a smile.

"What is it you wish me to do?"
enquired the little rabbit, unwilling to make a promise that he might not be able to keep. And let me say right here that many people promise to do things without first finding out what they are.

A very dangerous habit, for the often gets one into lots of trouble.

Chicago Gangsters Shower
Flowers at Lombardo Rites

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Chicago
gangland buried another of its field marshals Tuesday and the florists bill was immense.

Dion O'Banion had plenty of flowers when he checked out at the hands of his foes, and so did "Diamond Joe" Exposito and a lot of others, but Tony Lombardo—the man they carried to the grave yesterday—outdid them all in profusion of coffin-side blooms.

There were flowers, flowers, flowers, everywhere about the Cicero home of the gangster chief who was shot down by his enemies in Madison street last Friday. Floral pieces filled the interior of the modest brick bungalow; they filled the Lombardo lawn and back yard;
they filled the lawn of the house to the right, and spread over on the lawn of the house to the left.
In the middle of them all was an eight-foot heart of red roses surmounted by a white floral dove and in inscription, "To my pal." This was the tribute of Scarface Al Capone, Lombardo's friend and chief in the racketeering profession.

He Got Elected
But the crowning piece of floriculturist handiwork was a huge banner woven of blossoms and stretched between two sturdy little maple trees in the gunman's lawn. It bore the name "Lombardo" in eighteen-inch letters of roses and carnations. The thing was strikingly like the banners one sees streached across the streets at election time; so familiar in fact, that it prompted more than one inreverent mourner to remark:

"Yep, he got elected, all right."
Capone, king of them all, was the chief mourner among what was described by veteran gate-crashers at gangster funerals as the greatest turnout of thugs, hoodlums and racketeers Chicago has ever known.

There was an unprecedented air
of tensely about the proceedings, too, and it was noticeable that the mourners exchanged greeting with their left hands. Their rights rested in coat pockets, free for other purposes.

Capone went to the funeral in his sedan so well known because of its bullet-proof sides and non-shattering glass windshield and windows. His customary bodyguard was not with him as he pushed his way quietly through the large crowd to that inner room where Tony's body lay in state.

Observers, however, took particular notice of two large automobiles parked in strategic places at the edge of the crowd. Both were filled with dark-faced men who never took their eyes off the surging crowd while Capone was in the house. On the floors of their machines were paper-wrapped objects which had the size and shape of machine guns.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE QUIET NIGHT

MORE and more I gain great delight from the hours of night.
I like especially those moments just before retiring. I like to sit upon the veranda of my home and listen to the crickets, the distant murmur of the city, the almost silent movements of the leaves on the trees, and to ponder upon all that must be going on in the starry sky.

What peace and beauty there is to the night! I prefer a friend to sit with me that he, too, may drink in the rare loveliness, but I am not unhappy alone,—for in reality we are never alone. Some one, near and dear, is always silently our guest.

How many noble themes from the literature of the world pass through our mind as we idly sit alone, meditating upon the great things of human thought and striving. And what inspiration we gain from the songs of poets and artists whose souls have left a deathless impression upon the world.

I believe that the great God comes out in lovelier garb during the night hours when all is so still and so void of disturbance. I believe that He then walks about in the world looking after His own.

And I believe that each of us is more ourself, after the work of the day—after the petty worries and annoyances of the day are at an end and we can gather the essence of all our experiences and pool them to the greater good of our soul.

And what trust arises in our heart as we gather up the garments of the night and bid them to warm and comfort us as we are lost in sleep.

What a time for the quiet reading of some cherished book, or for an intimate talk with one beloved.

If one prays at all—and all should pray—then the closing of the day, with night thick in the coils of darkness, should find us each reverent and devout.

Reading advertisements saves time. By reading the advertisements in your daily newspaper you learn of the things you want and need; you learn where they are for sale and for how much. The advertisements enable you to weigh and choose even before you lay down your paper.

Advertisements are money savers because they enable you to secure better quality for the money you invest. They enable your dollar to purchase its full value in merchandise. Advertisements will keep you posted on every development that affects you, your wife and children, your home and your business.

Cuba Uses Movies To Help Farmers

HAVANA (AP)—The use of moving pictures to instruct farmers in modern methods will be instituted by the Cuban department of agriculture.

The films, depicting care of livestock and agricultural processes approved by the government, will be prepared at the government farming schools and distributed over the island.

Moving pictures are now being used to visualize the progress of the public works department and are being sent to Cuban legations abroad for exhibition as a means of attracting tourist travel. The Cuban government has installed a motion picture laboratory at the public works department under the direction of experts.
